THE THREE SONS.

- BY JOHN HOULTRIE.

I have a son, a little son, a boy just five years old, With eyes of thoughtful earnestness, and mind of gentle minuld;
They tell me that unusual grace in all his ways appears.
That my child is grave and wise of heart beyond his child-

I cannot say how this may be, -I know his face is fair, And yet his chief-st comel ness is his sweet and serious air: I know his heart is kind and fond, I know he loveth me, But leveth ret his mother more with grateful ferveney. But that which others most admire is the thought which The food for grave inquiring speech he everywhere doth Strange questions doth he ask of me, when we together

He scarcely thinks as children think, or talks as children Nor cares he much for childish sports, dotes not on bat or But looks on manhood's ways and works, and aptly mimics His little heart is basy still, and oftentimes perplex'd With thoughts about this world of ours, and thoughts about the next;

He kneels at his dear mother's knee, she teaches him to pray, and strange, and sweet, and selemn then are the words which he will say.
Oh, should my gentie child be spared to manhood's years

A holier and a wiser man I trust that he will be: And when i look into his eyes, and stroke his thoughtful I dare not think what I should feel, were I to lose him now.

I have a son, a second son, a simple child of three; How silver sweet those tones of his when he prattles on my

I do not think his light-blue eye is, like his brother's, keen, Nor his brow so full of childish thought as his hath ever But his little heart's a fountain pure of kind and tender And his every look's a gleam of light, rich depths of love When he walks with me, the country folk, who pass us in the street, Will shout with joy, and bless my boy, he looks so mild and sweet.

A playfellow is he to all, and yet, with cheerful tone, His presence is like sunshine sent to gladden home and Should be grow up to riper years, God grant his heart may

As sweet a home for heavenly grace as now for earthly love. And if, heads his grave, the tears our aching eyes must dum,

I have a son, a third sweet son; his age I can not tell, For they reckon not by years or months where he is gone to dwell. To us, for fourteen anxious months, his infant smiles were

And then he hade farewell to Earth, and went to live in I can not tell what form is his, what looks he weareth now, Nor guess how bright a glury crowns his shining scraph The thoughts that fift his sinless soul, the bliss which he Are number'd with the secret things which God will not But I know (for God hath told me this) that he is now at Where other blessed infants be, on their Saviour's loving I know his spirit feels no more this weary load of flesh But his sleep is blost with endless dreams of joy forever

I know the angels fad him close beneath their glittering wings,

And soothe him with a song that breathes of Heaven's divinest things I know that we shall meet our babe (his mother dear and I,)

When God for are shall wipe away all tears from every eye. Whate'er befulls his brethren twain, als bliss can never Their lot may here be grief and fear, but his is certain peace. It may be that the tempter's wiles their souls from bliss may saver, But if our own poor faith fail not, he must be ours forever. When we think of what our darling is, and what we still

When we is use on that world's perfect bliss, and this world's misery --When we groun beneath this load of sin, and feel this grief-Oh! we'd rather lose our other two, than have him here

law passed at the last session of Congress: "All shoemakers, tanners, blacksmiths, wagon makers, millers and their engineers, millwrights skilled and actually employed at their regular vocation in one of the said trades, habitually engaged in working for the public, and whilst so actually employed: Provided, Said persons shall make oath in writing that they are so skilled, and actually employed at the time at their regular vocation in one of the above trades, which affidavit shall only be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated: Provided further, That the exemptions herein granted to persons by reason of their peculiar mechanical or other occupation or employment, not connected with the public service, shall be subject to the condition that the products of the labor of such exempts, or of the companies and establishments with which they are connected, shall be sold and disposed of by the proprietors at prices not exceeding seventy five per centum upon the cost of production, or within a maximum to be fixed by the Secretary of War under such regulations as he may prescribe. And it is further provided, That if the proprietors of any such manufacturing establishments shall be shown, upon evidence, to be submitted to and adjudged of by the Secretary of War, to have violated, or in any manner evaded the true intent and spirit of the foregoing proviso, the exemptions therein granted shall no longer be extended between their superintendents or operatives in said establishments, but they and each and every one of them shall be forthwith enrolled under the provisions of this act, and ordered into the Conlederate army, and shall, in no event, be again exempted therefrom by reason of said manufacturing establishment or employment therein."

The same provisos are made applicable to superintendents and operators in wool and cotton factories, paper mills, and the superintendents of wool

Public extremity and necessity is the signal for a combination of extortioners to hurry forward, like thirsty vampires, to drain the last drop of the life current from their helpless victims. With eyes glistening with joy they gloat upon the feast of misery, and pray that the storm cloud may grow blacker, that the war may last forever and aye, and that the piteous wails of suffering humanity may hever cease to chime, is what is to their cars de-

The poverty-stricken wife of the soldier, who is far away beside the camp fire, presents herself and her barefooted children at the shoemaker's, and with streaming eyes states her inability to pay the treble cost of a rough pair of shoes. Listen to the extortioner; hear him: "Madam, I know you are obliged to have these articles, therefore it is that I shall extert from you your last farthing." Day by day this goes on without abatement; tanners charge $800 a dozen for calf skins tanned, which do not cost them $75 to prepare. Shoemakers charge $15 for the coarsest brogans, which do not cost them over $7. . Yet there stands the law and the penalty.

The same gross evils exist in relation to cotton and woolen manufactories where material is purchased for clothing our troops. Speculators are a god send to these extortioners, for not only will they league with them in carrying out their villainous and nefarious work, but will buy out their stock at a good price, and never file an item of information against them before the Secretary. How long are we thus to writhe under pressure and persecutions from devils without and devils within-from blood-thirsty enemies in the field and money-thirsty enemies at home?

If the law is rigorously enforced in but a few in stances, these vampires will soon be brought to their senses. The proper mode of procedure is simply that each one who buys leather from a tanner, or shoes or boots from a shoemaker, shall take a receipt and show it to an enrolling officer as prima facie evidence of extertion. If the extertioner refuse to give the receipt, go to the officer and lodge information of the price paid, or even demanded, and it will be his duty to take up the party or parties and turn them over to the army.

The government has made provision for extortioners, let the people make provision for speculators. The work has already begun in some localities. North Carolina papers say that Gov. Vance will call the Legislature of that State together in advance of the regular session, for the purpose of taking measures to put down the speculators, or place them in the army. - Richmond Eraminer.

NASHVILLE,-What is doing for the relief of this city? It is not only in possession of the enemy, who are practising every species of oppression and hardship upon our people, but in addition the latter are on the verge of starvation, all communication with the country around being cut off. We have thrown away Kentucky-is Tennessee also to be disgracefully abandoned? If not, why is some movement not made against Nashville to drive out the enemy and relive our suffering people? Is it for the want of men? Why is Bragg's immense army allowed to be idle for weeks between Knoxville and Cumberland Gap? Why are they not put in motion now, whilst Nashville with its small garrison could be so easily taken? Here is work for them if they are too weak to go back into Kentucky, and work that evies aloud for immediate attention. Why wait until the garrison shall have been reinforced from the West or from Kentucky? With the small force we have around the city there will be little trouble in breaking through our lines and making the place so formidable that it only can be taken with an immense loss of life. We allowed Buell to go shead of us in our expedition to Kentucky-are we to wait and wait until he plays the same trick on us at Nashville?

It is evident that there is gross imbecility somewhere, and we hope the President will at once put a man in charge of the department who both knows Republican.

PAYMENT OF DECEASED SOLDIERS, &c.

PAYMENT OF STATE BOUNTY DUE DE-CEASED SOLDIERS. Executive Department, North-Carolina, RAIMEN, October 17th, 1862.

General Orders, |

No. 9. | THE FOLLOWING REGULATIONS ARE PUBLISHdraw bounty of deceased soldiers in accordance with an ordinance of the Convention ratified the 2zd day of February, 1862: REGULATIONS. 1. The payment of bounty to the representatives of decoased soldiers is based upon the certificate of the flom-manding officer of the commany, who will state the time of the enlistment of the soldier, the date of his decease in service, the smount of bounty aircady paid by the State, and the company and regiment to which he belorged. 2. The claimant will make affidavit before a Magnatrate that he or she is the next of kin to the deceased, according to the provisions of the foregoing ordinance of the Conven-tion, and that there is no other person entitled to make claim. The affidavit of the claimant must be sustained by that of one disinterested witness, that the facts stated are correct within his own knowledge, and that he has no in-terest in the claim. The Magistrate administering the oath will certify to the credibility of the witness, and the clerk of the County Court will certify, under seal, that he is an authorized and acting Magistrate.

8. If the claimant or cisimants be minors, payment will be made to the guardian upon the production of the pro-per certificate under the seal of the Court of his appoint-ment and the sufficiency of his bond—the claim to be prov-ed by him as in other cases. 4. A bounty of fifty dollars, deducting the bounty that may have been previously paid, is due to all persons who may have volunteered for three years or the war, and to all persons mustered into or continued in service under the provisions of the conscription act.
